Ingérop, a major independent engineering company, active in the sectors of sustainable transportation systems, energy transition and the living environment, has signed the acquisition of the Rauscher Group in Germany.

With 185 employees, Rauscher Group was created in 1985, and declared a turnover close to 21 million euros in 2018. The Group, with headquarters in Munich, has seven offices over Germany and two international establishments - in Greece and in Tennessee, USA.

A major player in Germany, Rauscher Group provides project management and engineering in the industrial, hydraulic and underground sectors to public and private clients.

This acquisition is part of Ingérop's strategy to achieve more than 27% of its activity in the international arena by the end of 2019 and continues Ingérop's global expansion, having already opened new subsidiaries in Kenya, Australia and Canada, as well as taken an equity participation in HPM in Morocco in 2018. Two new subsidiaries will be created in Belgium and Ivory Coast in 2019.

«This acquisition is a good opportunity for the Ingérop Group to develop its skills and expertise in Germany, especially in the urban transportation, bridges and industrial decommissioning sectors. I am personally convinced that the development of the synergies between our talented people will enable us to support our national and international clients in our domestic and export markets.» explains Yves Metz, president of Ingérop Group.

Wolfgang Rauscher, the previous owner of Rauscher-Gruppe, comments on the agreement as follows: «Our discussions have shown a very high and common understanding in the basic entrepreneurial ideas and in the strategic direction that we will need to develop, so this is an excellent basis for future cooperation. The now completed affiliation with Ingérop therefore offers me the long-pursued opportunity to continue my life's work with a strong, very capable owner who will lead our companies into a successful future in existing and new markets.»
