

Ingerop announces the creation of its foundation

Ingerop is creating a foundation to pass on its passion for its professions, share its commitment to excellence and place people at the heart of its project to support and assist those who want a better life.

Rueil-Malmaison, 29 January 2026 – French group Ingerop, a key player in engineering for ecological, energy, industrial, digital and societal transitions, announces the creation of the Ingerop Foundation.

Housed by the Fondation de France, whose mission is to work directly in the field to provide solutions that closely match needs, the Ingerop Foundation intends to draw on its own network in France and internationally to offer its technical expertise and, above all, the interpersonal skills of its employees to the benefit of all.

Supporting projects that will enable everyone to find their place in a sustainable world: the vision of the Ingerop Foundation.

Olivier Poulet, President of the Ingerop Foundation, is a young retiree who worked for the Group for 20 years, notably as Regional Director for the Mediterranean and Indian Ocean. For him, as for François Lacroix, Scientific and Technical Director, and Marie-Pierre Fally, Director of Corporate Social Responsibility and Integrated Management Systems, there is a need to pool resources in the countries where Ingerop operates. Within the Group, there is genuine recognition of individual merit and supportive guidance that allows everyone to develop according to their abilities, whether technical or interpersonal. It was therefore only natural that the Foundation was created to strengthen and structure existing individual initiatives within Ingerop, enabling everyone to find their place and thrive in a sustainable world.

Kindness and proximity: the pillars of the Ingerop Foundation

Kindness, commitment and local networks are Ingérop's strengths. The Foundation's executive committee, which decides on major strategic directions, will select projects in areas where Ingerop is already present, projects related to integration through education and the transmission of skills and knowledge, which are essential for pursuing a career and building a future. Its missions will also support projects related to the prevention of crises and natural disasters and the fight against climate change.

Committing to serving the public interest

The Ingerop Foundation, made up of an internal committee, will enable and facilitate the involvement of its volunteer employees in providing on-the-ground support to associations identified by the internal committee and the Fondation de France. The Foundation will also be able to draw on the support of stakeholders who make up the external committee. This means that everyone, whether an employee, partner or qualified individual from the social or environmental field, will be able to get involved alongside the Foundation. Depending on the projects submitted to it, the Foundation will offer human, financial or technical support to women and men of all generations who wish to get involved in responsible projects.

About La Fondation de France, France's leading philanthropic network

Each of us has the power to act in the public interest. For more than 50 years, this conviction has been the driving force behind the Fondation de France. Every day, it encourages, supports and transforms the desire to act into useful and effective actions to build a more peaceful, united and sustainable world. The Fondation de France has developed unique expertise, drawing on the best experts, hundreds of volunteers and thousands of actors in the field, in all areas of public interest: aid to vulnerable people, medical research, the environment, culture, education, etc.

With its 977 member foundations, it supports more than 12,000 promising and innovative initiatives each year, in France and abroad. Independent and private, it operates thanks to the generosity of its donors.
